
THE WORLD
IS CHANGING.
WHAT WILL YOU
MAKE OF IT?
Yale JACKSON SCHOOL
OF GLOBAL AFFAIRS

ARRIVE WITH PURPOSE

Shivonne Logan, MPP '26

"Jackson's commitment to funding tuition shows the values of the program. It has not only allowed me to pursue meaningful work, but also to learn from peers who are the best in their fields, regardless of their background."

100%
tuition covered for MPP students

MPP

Master in Public Policy

A 2-year, fully funded, multidisciplinary training at the intersection of theory and practice that expands your thinking and strengthens your leadership.

MAS

Master of Advanced Studies

A 1-year, fully flexible, GRE-optional training for mid-career professionals in fields relevant to global affairs.

LEAVE WITH DIRECTION

100% of Jackson cohorts with under 50 students

18 average class size

2:1 student teacher ratio

66% of graduates in nonprofit, government, or public sector

JACKSON JOURNEYS

Leaders face complex challenges.

Bomi Okuyiga, MPP '23

PRE-JACKSON: UK CIVIL SERVICE, ECONOMIST

"I didn't want a school with classes in the hundreds. The small seminars at Jackson were great practice for building networks and making decisions as a team."

Elen Aghekyan, MA '22

PRE-JACKSON: FREEDOM HOUSE, RESEARCH ANALYST

"I came to Jackson to figure out how to shift from being a problem finder to being a problem solver."

Will Slotznick, MPP/MBA '24

PRE-JACKSON: IDINSIGHT, SENIOR ASSOCIATE FOR AFRICA AND SOUTH ASIA

"A constant challenge I encountered in my work before Jackson was how to connect good development ideas to real, economy-scale capital."

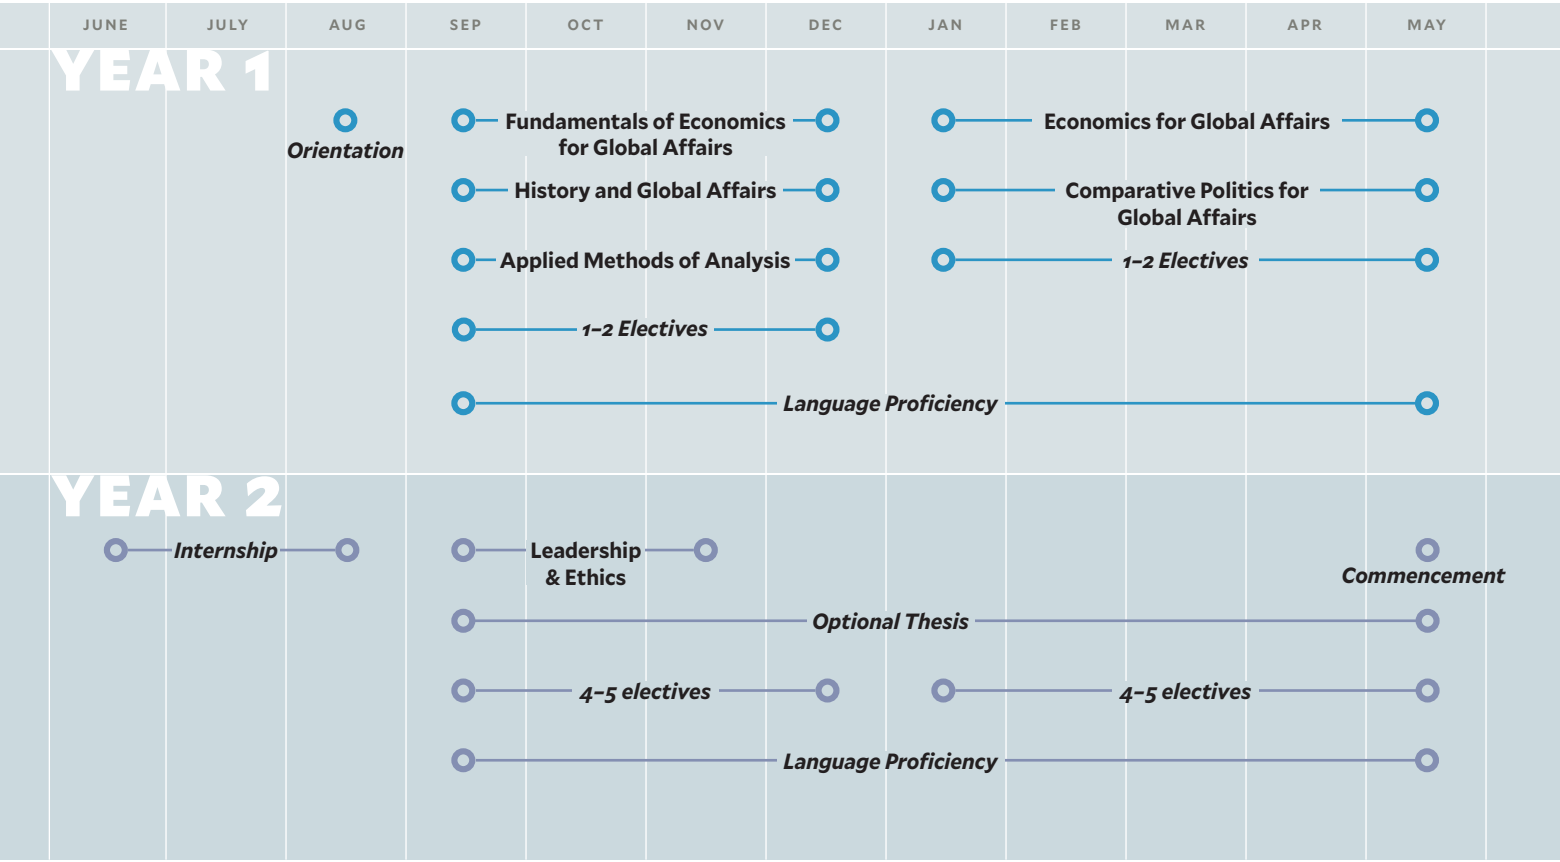

Didace Irafasha, MPP '25

PRE-JACKSON: UN DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM (UNDP), RESEARCHER

"I wanted a multidisciplinary perspective and to avoid siloed answers."

SCHEDULE OF STUDIES 4–5 classes per semester

Eva Martin, MPP '23
"Even though I don't do economic or statistical analysis as part of my job, the core curriculum helps me to better understand the context of other perspectives."

Fiona Bultonsheen, MPP '26
"You are not born a policy leader. The Yale Jackson education and faculty give me the confidence to take charge in meetings and eventually lead conversations with senior policymakers."

FACULTY SPOTLIGHT

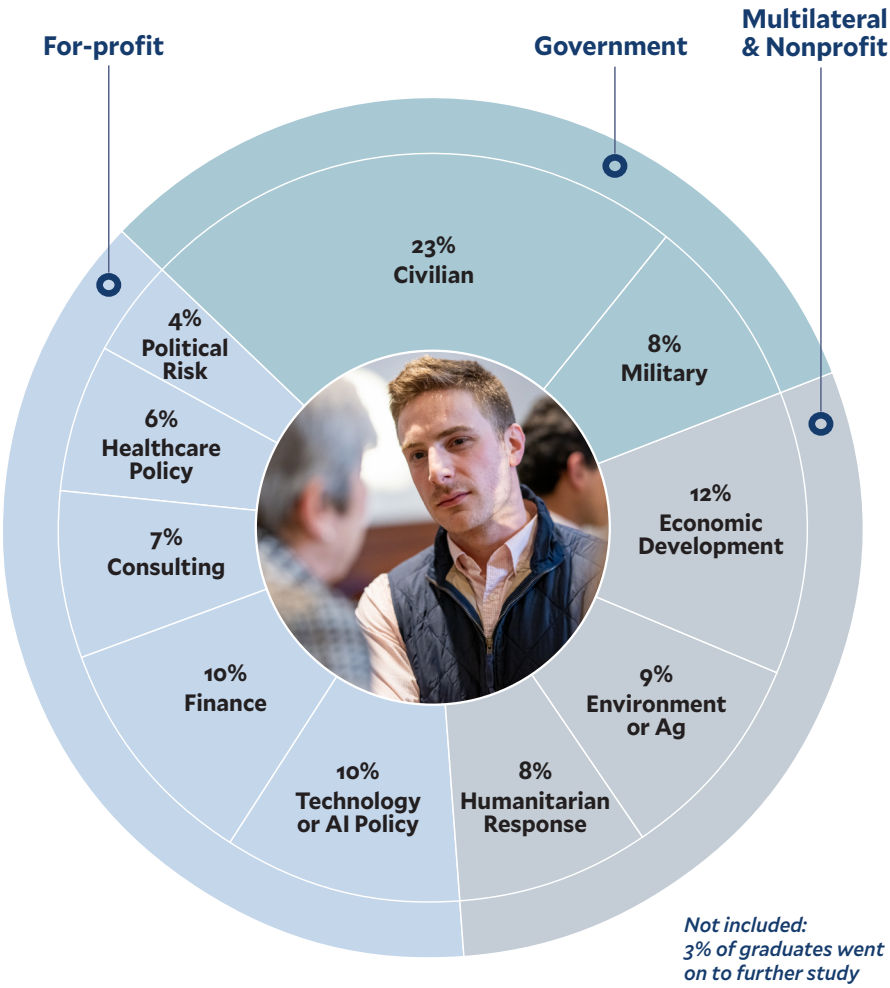

Alden Young,
Associate Professor of History and Global Affairs

"What makes Yale Jackson distinctive is its balance of rigorous academic training and real-world engagement. Students gain access to practitioners and policymakers, but they also have the space to step back and think deeply about their longer-term goals. It's not only about the next career step, but also about preparing to lead- five, ten, or twenty years into the future — across government, NGOs, or the private sector."

Decisions on global issues – democracy, globalization, refugees, human rights, and more – are rarely determined by institutions.

They are shaped by small teams and guided by individuals who can work across industries, cultures, and perspectives. Yale Jackson prepares leaders to navigate these challenges wherever they arise – in government agencies, international organizations, nonprofit and for-profit companies.

CAREERS BY INDUSTRY
2023–25

Not included: 3% of graduates went on to further study

YOU LEAVE READY TO LEAD.

JACKSON JOURNEYS

Small size leadership training

Bomi Okuyiga, MPP '23
"Through a policy course, I created a Monitoring & Evaluation plan for an organization in Kenya, which they used to raise funding for a new initiative. It's the kind of small-size practicum experience Jackson offered across many classes."

Elen Aghekyan, MA '22
"Jackson gave me the freedom to chase after every interesting question."

Will Slotznick, MPP/MBA '24
"Courses such as Catalyzing Private Sector Investment in Sub-Saharan Africa, taught by Joyce-Ann Wainana, and Development Finance Beyond Aid, with Alix Peterson Zwane, clarified for me how I could help mobilize resources at the intersection of the public and private sectors."

Didace Irafasha, MPP '25
"The flexibility to take courses in other schools opened doors for me, and learning from practitioners clarified what I wanted to pursue."

WORLD CHANGERS & FUTURE MAKERS

CONTINUE YOUR JACKSON JOURNEY.

What are we looking for?

Timeline

Early January
Application deadline

Mid-March
Decision release

August
Classes begin

APPLY EVENTS NEWS

Funding

Every MPP student receives a full tuition scholarship

Yale JACKSON SCHOOL OF GLOBAL AFFAIRS

mailing address PO Box 208359, New Haven, Connecticut 06520-8359
campus address 55 Hillhouse Avenue, New Haven, Connecticut 06511

phone 203.432.6253 | fax 203.432.9886
website jackson.yale.edu | email jackson.school@yale.edu

school/yalejacksonschool
yalejacksonschool
yalejacksonschool
@yalejacksonsch

ON THE COVER: Kate Baldwin, associate professor of political science and global affairs, meets with a student.